Plans To Enlarge Strand Theatre

John F. Keogh, who last week closed a deal for the purchase of the Strand theatre building and its equipment, will take possession of the show house today, Sept. 4th.

Under the new ownership the Strand theatre is put on a circuit assuring it of the best major feature pictures.

Plans have been drawn, it is said, to extend the theatre forty feet, by building on the rear. This will give a seating capacity of 800 people.

New equipment and latest type air-conditioning will be installed and will make our local theatre one of the best equipped suburban houses in San Diego.

The new management reports all the major pictures will be shown in Ocean Beach following immediately after the first run in down-town San Diego.

Roosevelt Has Proven Self Real Humanitarian

On the evening of August 24th at Mission Beach the "On With Roosevelt" club, California Assembly of Democrats, held an especially lively and interesting meeting, with a five-piece orchestra as an added feature.

Only a few candidates for office at the primary gave pointers on their program if elected, the outstanding talk of the evening being made by Jim Alexander who said he was not a candidate, only interested in placing the truth before the voters, in regard to the re-election of President Roosevelt.

Alexander stated it made him "scratch his head" to find out who was really running for president on the Republican ticket— whether it be Hamilton, Landon, Knox or Wm. Randolph Hearst. He stated the fight was distinctly between capital and labor and that Landon's record in Kansas showed he had no sympathy for the wage earner, had while in office cut the salaries of school teachers and the state help. His administration in allowing relief to the needy was "generous" enough to give $1.08 to a family of three, when on the relief rolls.

While for President Roosevelt, the speaker closed in saying, that the President had done so many fine things in a humanitarian way, that he didn't see how anyone could vote against him.

A. R. Fling presided.

HIGH SCHOOL TO START FOOTBALL SQUAD SEPT. 8

Coach Beerkle has announced that suits will be given to members of last year's football squad, Point Loma High school, Monday, Sept. 7th, 10 a. m., with first practice for the boys at 10 a. m. Tuesday morning September the 8th.

MUSIC BY MERKELEY'S MAIDS WAS MUCH APPRECIATED

The Merkeley's Maids, band organization of San Diego, gave our local folks quite a treat last Saturday afternoon when they played before a large crowd for an hour or more at the foot of Newport avenue near the beach.

The concert was the outstanding event of the summer season for musical entertainment and the business people and citizens are grateful to Merkeleys for the courtesy of the band's visit.

GEORGE BERGMAN VISITS HOME FOLKS—GONE AGAIN

George Bergman left last week after visiting his mother and home folks here a few days accompanied by a buddy from the U.S.S. Mexico, upon which ship he is now stationed.

George reports Arthur Tipp, F1c, and Jarvis Lawrence, Sea2c, on the U.S.S. Oglala, flagship of the mine craft were in port.

Frank and Dick Rogers are in army service at Schofield Barracks, Hawaii.

Karl Fastnacht, former athlete of Point Loma High, is with the submarine baseball team at Pearl Harbor.

MILT LANCASTER PROGRAM CHAIRMAN WEDNESDAY

J. D. Watson, vice president of Ocean Beach Kiwanis presided Wednesday, with Milton Lancaster as chairman of the day's program.

Announcement was made of an 11th distrist meeting to be held at Pine Valley the evening September 17, also the California-Nevada destrict convention to be held in the Mission Inn, Riverside, Oct. 8-9-10.

The speaker stated he was raised on a farm and owing to the general hard work of this vocation he had come to dislike it very much as a boy and decided to enter other fields, however, he believed that if the boys and girls of the farms were better educated in their line and do things in a better way with modern machinery and improvements and taught to care for these things that life on the farm would be more worth living. It was Lancaster's opinion that if the farm population had adequate buying power depression times would be solved.

Dr. Victor C. Alderson and Dr. M. R. Eastman of the La Jolla club were welcome visitors.

State Fair Exhibitors Invited To Del Mar

Frank DuPree, superintendent of the live stock division of the San Diego County Fair which will be held at the new fair grounds in Del Mar, October 8-18, was in Sacramento this week to attend the presentation of the California State Fair which opens September 5 and extends to September 14.

Mr. DuPree will personally interview every exhibitor of live stock in the State Fair, with a view to interesting them in the first big fair to be held in the new grounds at Del Mar.

Already, many of the exhibitors in the State Fair have indicated that they will exhibit their stock in the San Diego County Fair, a number of them having already signed contracts to that effect.

TO ENJOY THREE MONTHS' VACATION TO RELATIVES

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Rollins, of Blue Bell Court will leave Monday next on their first real vacation in nine years, the present plans being to go to Bishop, California, where E.C. may catch a few trout, then to Yosemite National park, Boulder Dam, Salt Lake City; and Oklahoma City, where Mrs. Rollins will visit a sister and a niece at Enid, Okla.; then start the return journey and visit Mr. Rollins' sister at Tuscon, Arizona.

Mrs. Pittman will conduct Blue Bell court for Mrs. Rollins and Mr. Rollins has leased his service station at the corner of Bacon and Voltaire streets.

The travelers hope to be back home about January 1st and we wish them a lot of pleasant times on the journey.

Pier Project Mentioned By Manager's Office

Tuesday Messrs. J. W. Dick, N. Sommer, John McAlpine, Doren Perrine, Albert Dumont Messrs Lajune, Hines, A. E. Cahill and several others attended council meeting as observers and supporters of a fishing pier project for Ocean Beach.

While there was no action expected or taken, Asst. City Manager Fred Lockwood, told the council assistance in construction of such a project had been promised by the county supervisors who have set up a $100,000 reserve to sponsor WPA projects and that money would be available from this fund to aid projects that would be approved.

Apparently it is up to our citizens to see that the city takes action and then the county authorities will assist to a reasonable amount, unless the fund above mentioned is already allocated.

On Being Nine

Ellen Jean Marshall celebrated her ninth birthday anniversary Tuesday evening when her mother Mrs. Dean Marshall invited several playmates to a theatre party. Shirley Temple starring in "Poor Little Rich Girl" shared honors with a frosty birthday cake on this occasion Guests were Dorllen Frieze, Nanett Oeshier, Nancy Hopkins, Beverly Parks and Dean Marshall, jr.

For Mrs. M. R. Johnson

One-year-old Robert Gerald, recently adopted son of Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Johnson of San Diego, former Ocean Beach residents was the incentive for a pretty shower last week at the home of Mrs. John Alford, 5107 Narragansett avenue, when she, with Mrs. Anna B. Sybil, presided in compliment to Mrs. Johnson.

The hostesses used a profusion of dainty blossoms about the rooms and natural lovliness of the enclosed garden where luncheon was served again stressed the beauty of the affair Sixteen friends of Mrs. Johnson were present.

Luise Rosenberg is Hostess

Members of the Mu Sigma Pi, honorary musical sorority of State College, their friends and pledges, were guests of Miss Luise Rosenberg at her home in Loma Portal last Saturday evening with an informal musicale and party. The sorority trio with Miss Margaret Capps, pianist, Miss Betty Jean Capps, violinist and Miss Lucy Schatzel, cellist, played six classical selections after which the evening was devoted to various appropriate game. High score prizes were won by Miss Nina Kline and Miss Hazel Scofield. The consolation prize went to Miss Margaret Stratton

Green, yellow and silver, the sorority colors, were effectively used in the floral decorations as well as the refreshments. At the close of the evening pledges were reminded of their standing.

The John Alford Home Scene of Art Affair

The Fine Arts department of the San Diego Woman's club of which Mrs. Otto Schneider is chairman, met last Friday at the Sea Cliff home of Mrs. John Alford on Narragansett avenue. Under gay umbrellas and in the gardens and along the cliffs artists in bright smocks, traditional bows and berets worked enthusiastically at their easels. The flowery fragrances and the salty Pacific inspired paintings of varied contrasts. Luncheon was served in the patio garden where the day was acclaimed ideal by all, and will doubtlessly become an established custom.

Piano Recital Given

Mrs. Frances Hardy of Ramona, formerly of Ocean Beach, presented a group of her very young Ramona and local piano students in a musical program of classical adaptations and folk numbers at the home of Mrs. Dean Marshall last Wednesday evening. Pins significant of their accomplishments were awarded each student. Mrs. Marshall was assisted by Mrs. I. W. Parks in serving refreshments. Guests numbered thirty-four parents and children.

Going and Coming

Mrs. H. L. King of Del Monte avenue bade good-by to her friends Monday when she left on one of her usual cross-country jaunts to New York where she will visit her son Robert W. King at his suburban home in Short Hills, N. J. Mr. King was formerly of London, England. Mrs. King plans to see the seasons first snow there and to return by steamer thru the Panama Canal by way of San Francisco where she will visit her other son, Clifford L. King, arriving here in time for Christmas.

Mrs. Lily E. Neal left yesterday for the east coast on her second long trip this summer. Mrs. Neal will be joined in Chicago by her daughter, Mrs. B. S. Kock and together by way of Detroit and Niagara Falls they will continue to New York City. Mrs. Kochs home is at Hastings on the Hudson river, where Mrs. Neal will visit before returning.

The Masons visited their son Jack on the Berkley Campus where he is enrolled in his freshman year having graduated in the class of '36 from the San Diego Army and Navy Academy. A week was enjoyed at the Yosemite National park.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Tracy of 4511 Brighton avenue returned Monday evening by way of the Niagara Falls and Boulder Canyon from a two weeks' vacation trip which took them to New York City. While there they visited Dr. D. T. Prehn of the U. S. Navy and Mrs. Prehn. The Tracys stayed at the Hotel New Yorker, the thirty-second floor, if you are interested.

Mrs. E. A. Walker and daughter Ruth are home from an eventful three weeks' trip with Mr. and Mrs. Cliford Allen (Grace Walker). One week was enjoyed at Breeze Point Lodge, Minnesota, where Miss Ruth Walker attended the sixty-third national convention of the Alpha Sigma Alpha as a delegate of the Omega Omega chapter. A visit of first importance to Mrs. Walker was enjoyed with her mother Mrs. Warren at Kansas City. Among the main points of interest were Yellowstone National park, Boulder Dam, Bryce Canyon, and Zion National park. Miss Ruby Warren, niece of Mrs. Walker, from Burlington, Kansas, joined the Walker-Allen party on its return. Miss Warren is now making her home in Pacific Beach and has accepted a position as primary teacher in the Warren-Walker private school in Ocean Beach.

Late summer visits prove popular at the beach. Mrs. Connell on Del Monte avenue, who entertained Mrs. Myrt Baxton and her five children of Los Angeles last week, is now enjoying a visit with her nephew, Cliford Cornell, his wife and daughters and Mr. and Mrs. Kalal all of Cleveland, O. A large silver and black trailer belongs to them.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy R. Gorton and son are spnding two weeks with Mr. Gorton's mother, Mrs. Laura Gorton, 4728 Del Mar ave. The Gortons will return to their home in Glendale next week.

Mrs. Virginia Lee Lockey of Los Angeles is the guest of Mrs. P. M. Burrows, 1993 Ebers.

Miss Jessie Rice of Perris, Calif., is week-nd guest at the home of Mrs. S. L. Dolan, Santa Monica ave.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence L. Wells and son Dwight of Los Angeles visited Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Wells Sunday. Master Dwight served his great-grandfather James Richmond as best man when he exchanged vows with his wife Hattie Everett Richmond at the "Symbolic Wedding" of the True Vow Keepers last Sunday at the Exposition.

Miss Levin Parks, Edward and Robert Pankey of Santa Ana spent Sunday at Allgator Rock Lodge with Mr. and Mrs. George W. Damron and family. The Pankeys are cousins of Mr. Damron.

Miss Lois Wilks who visited her aunt, Mrs. T. C. Mason, early this summer returned here from a motor trip to Canada with Mr. and Mrs. J. D. McCary of El Centro, to say good-by again before leaving for her home in Missouri Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Mellon and family have returned from a two weeks' visit with relatives in San Francisco. . . . . Mrs. Julia T. McGarvey spent the last week end in Los Angeles—pleasure this time. . . . Miss Catherine McCulough visited Dr. and Mrs. J. W. Harrison in Los Angeles the week-end. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Harrison of Sacramento visited Mr. Harrison's mother Mrs. Bessie Harrison, 4824 Coronado avenue.

Here and There

The Point Loma Volley tennis team under the direction of Mrs. A. Dumont won second place in the National City Olympics. First honors were taken by the North Park group.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. O'Mara are making their home in Fallbrook where Jack O'Mara will be athletic coach in the schools. O'Mara graduated from Point Loma High school and State College.

Mrs. Emina Brooks, whose condition a short time ago was considered serious, is now convalescing and enjoying visits with friends.

Social Tid-Bits

Mr. and Mrs. Leon Buckles and Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Wells drove to Warners Hot Springs for dinner last Saturday.

An Ocean Beach foursome attending the San Diego Women's Civic Center al fresco bridge Tuesday included Mesdames John Alford, B. W. Wenrich, Clyde Walters and J. H. Lewis.

Mrs. Frances Neill was a gracious hostess Monday evening honoring out-of-town visitors Miss Jane Dick and Miss Elinor Thayer at dinner.

Good Citizenship Follows Good Thinking

"Think and let think," is an old axiom of John Wesley. Tho centuries ago, but it seems to have lost its place in this complex world, where thinking should be such a potent factor. It is said that from 20 to 40 millions of the nation's adult population are just "child-minded." A vast majority of people seem afraid to do any thinking; in fact they will let others do their thinking for them, and make their decisions.

Good behavior is the result of right thinking; likewise then, ill-conduct must come from wrong, random thinking. This land of free America decrees the right to think as one desires, as well as the use of free speech; therefore, good and bad influences may eminate from different minds, and any man may make himself a storm center by his words.

Any life purpose should be carefully sought out, thought out and wrought out, with a backing of good citizenship first, followed by sane thinking. The percentage of humanity who can think and make wise decisions is only about 4 or 5 per cent! The entire history of the human race along this line, shows small increase. President Lowell of Harvard says that "our aim as educators is to teach men how to think. We are trying to give them the power of thinking clearly for themselves." This is a fine expression for aiding young people to find themselves in the great field of thought. Another educator says that the boy who cannot be taught to think is not worth educating. You cannot fasten a $50,000 education upon a fifty-cent boy.

Thoughts are magnets which attract things like themselves. It is also true that everything radiates its own quality, and attracts things which are akin. Efficiency is the big word to fall in love with; but it requires a harmonious, peaceful and working mind with freedom of thought to realize it. Mind is power. It is the one creative, agressive, pulsing and stimulating power of mind that must be back of any worthy achievement; then aspiration becomes inspiration. Good, sane thinking is true optimism; it is to the individual what sunshine is to vegetation. What a delight it is to find people who not only are not afraid to think, but who like to use their minds to think things to suit themselves. Carlyle said: "Let the world beware when a thinker is let loose."

HOSPITALITY

I know a little red-roofed house
It's cozy as can be
And a most delightful place to sit
And drink a cup of tea.
The hostess is so gracious
When she smiles and chats with you
You feel you'd like to stay there
And spend the evening, too.

Possibly No Life Guards Here After Sept. 13

According to announcement from the city hall it is stated practically all life guards will be taken off duty from north shore beaches on Sept. 13th.

While this is a move for economy on the part of the city it is not beneficial to beach interests and it is hoped that a man will be kept on duty at Ocean Beach for the protecton of bathers who go into the surf in numbers as great in the fall months, when the days are bright and sunny, as thru the summer.

Property owners along the beach and all civic organizations should make inquiry into what protection is proposed for our beach area and insist that a guard be kept on duty until Thanksgiving and later if weather remains at all favorable.

State Fair at Capital To Be Outstanding

Sacramento, Sept. 2—California's annual state fair will add a new chapter to its romantic 82-year-old history beginning Saturday in Sacramento.

This great show will run for ten days, Sept. 5 to 14 inclusive. Fair officials are prepared for the greatest crowd in history or more than five hundred thousand.

All attractions and displays have been arranged to depict a pageant of progress, which started in the gold rush days of 1854.

The fair annually is the show window of California.

WEDDING AT BAPTIST CHURCH SEPTEMBER FIRST

Neva O. Hall became the bride of John C. Martin Tuesday evening in a quiet ceremony at the Ocean Beach Baptist church. Miss Marion Purdy was maid of honor, and Walter Dunn actted as best man.

Bridesmaids were: Misses Margie Linthicum, Joyce Settle, Freida Hall and Marjorie Buswell. Usherettes were: Misses Phyllis Price, Marie Quist, Virginia Hall and Myrtle Hess. After the wedding, the bridal party enjoyed a reception in the Sunday school room of the church.

The couple will reside at 2239 Bolinas street after they return Saturday from a short wedding trip to the Laguna mountains.

DOUGLAS HUBBS LEAVES FOR MIRAMONTE COLLEGE

Tuesday, September 1st, Douglas Hubbs of 4165 Udal street left for the Miramonte Junior College in Atascadero, California. Douglas received a very nice scholarship from the northern school and a splendid school year awaits him there. Mr. and Mrs. Hubbs, their son George, and Joseph Friel, were at the bus depot to see the young collegiate off safely on his journey.

Miramonte is a private school and junior college for boys and enjoys the distinction of having the highest possible scholastic rating in the state. Good luck Douglas. We all know you will make good at Miramonte.

Russian Conspirators Against Stalin Plead Guilty—Italy and France Sparring Over Spain—Roosevelt Primed for Drouth Area Tour.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

© Western Newspaper Union.

SIXTEEN men, arraigned in Moscow on charges of plotting the assassination of Dictator Josef Stalin and the seizure of power in the Soviet republic, calmly pleaded guilty. Two of them, Gregory Zinoviev and Leo Kamenev, were members with Stalin 13 years ago of a triumvirate that governed Russia and are well known to the outside world. The confessions did not end the trial, for the defendants contradicted and accused one another until the case was in a jumble. Some of them, like Zinoviev, proudly accepted responsibility for the plot, which was said to have been engineered by the exiled Leon Trotzky. It was believed all sixteen would face the firing squad.

Gregory Zinoviev

Twelve more men and one woman, the government announced, were held for examination and probable trial. Some of these were involved by the confessions of the sixteen conspirators.

In the case on trial the defendants revealed the fact that not only were they plotting the assassination of Stalin and four others, but planned also to betray Trotzky and place Zinoviev and Kamenev in supreme power.

Trotzky, at Hoenefoss, Norway, scoffed at the Moscow proceedings as "humbug." "For political vengeance," he said, "the trial puts the Dreyfus scandal and the reichstag fire in the shadow. The confessions were forced by the 'Ogpu' (secret police), which gives the accused a choice between confession according to the Ogpu's desires and taking lesser penalties or death."

PREMIER MUSSOLINI, insisting that neutrality in the Spanish war must mean absolute nonintervention, suddenly put Italy's air force of 1,500 war planes in readiness for flight to the aid of the Spanish rebels if France would not abandon her support of the Madrid regime.

News of this stirred the People's Front government of France to indignation. Officials in Paris said if Italy sent arms and munitions to the rebels in Spain or otherwise openly aided them, France would have to abandon her neutral position and help the socialists.

For a day this situation alarmed the statesmen of Europe, but soon it was stated in both Rome and Paris that negotiations for the neutrality accord were going forward nicely with prospects for a satisfactory agreement that would include both Italy and Germany. Whether Germany would come in, however, was still in doubt. Berlin was further provoked against the Madrid government by the stopping and search of the German steamer Kamerun by Spanish warships off Cadiz. German warships were ordered to protect German shipping "by all means" and the German charge d'affairs at Madrid was instructed to "protest immediately and in the sharpest form against the action of the Spanish warship, which constituted a violation of all international law."

DISPATCHES from the French border said Spanish rebel warships finally had begun the long threatened bombardment of San Sebastian and Irun, and that the loyalists were carrying out the threatened execution of the 1,900 Fascist hostages they were holding there. The battleship Espana fired a lot of heavy shells toward Fort Guadalupe but for a time at least was apparently not trying to hit that stronghold because many of their sympathizers were held prisoners in the fort. The Guadalupe garrison was hesitant in returning the fire for fear that shells would fall on French territory. Already the French government was angered by the dropping of bombs on French border towns, though it was disputed whether they came from loyalist or rebel planes.

Virgilio Cabanellas

The Fascists captured the important town of Badajoz, near the Portuguese border, at the point of the bayonet, and were reported to have executed 1,500 government adherents taken there. The rebels also reported a victory near Zaragoza after a bloody battle. General Franco met General Mola and "President" Virgilio Cabanellas at the northern rebel headquarters in Burgos and planned for further advances of their southern and northern columns on Madrid. These will be supplemented by 4,000 Moors and foreign legion veterans marching eastward from Badajoz.

CATALONIA, which for four years has been an autonomous region within the Spanish state, and which has been supporting the Madrid government against the Fascist rebels, sees in the present conditions the opportunity to establish its full independence. The generalitat or government council decreed confiscation of all private property; and then, "to eliminate dual control and place all responsibility in one place," all magistrates, judges and others appointed by the Madrid government were relieved of their duties. The council also announced it would act henceforth in complete independence in maintaining order.

The Catalonian decree promulgated plans for a single tax and speedy suppression of multiple taxation. The basis for the new tax plan, although undecided was presumed to be income, not land, as the large agricultural properties are to be collectivized.

POPE PIUS XI, addressing pilgrims from Malta, took another whack at communism. Alluding evidently to the civil war in Spain, he says: "The world is upside down, and sick from a grievous malady which threatens to become graver and more dangerous still. It is not necessary to say to you Maltese what this illness is, because you have a definite part in the tribulation.

"There is only the hand of God to aid humanity and put an end to the horrible massacres which are going on and all the offenses against human fraternity, against religion, priests and God."

PREPARATIONS for President Roosevelt's trip through the drouth region of the Middle West were practically completed and the Chief Executive was supplied with all the facts and figures needed to give him a comprehensive understanding of the situation before starting. This information was furnished mainly by WPA Administrator Harry Hopkins, who was selected to accompany Mr. Roosevelt on the tour. Mr. Hopkins told the President that in the drouth area 90,000 persons already are on the WPA payrolls and that the number eventually will be 120,000 to 150,000, the relief work being continued through the winter. At this time the cost per man is about $50 a month.

Estimates of the amount of money deemed necessary to meet the situation in the "dust bowl" were given the President by Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau and Acting Budget Director Daniel Bell.

NEITHER Fascism nor Communism will be tolerated in Czechoslovakia, which is "a firm, indestructible lighthouse of democracy," said President Eduard Benes in a speech at Reichenberg. But he told the German minority which he was addressing particularly, that he hoped that in the fall "the Locarno powers will be able to work out a plan for general European co-operation and that good neighborly relations will be established between Germany and Czechoslovakia."

President Benes

Leaders of the German minority in Czechoslovakia charge that unemployment in their part of the country is greater than anywhere else in Czechoslovakia—73 unemployed per 1,000 population, compared with the state average of 38 per 1,000.

They charge that this is partly the result of the government's failure to place orders in German Bohemian factories and failure to give state jobs to members of the German minority.

SOIL conservation compliance is to be checked by a system of aerial photography, if the experiments now being carried on by the AAA are satisfactory. The plan is still only on trial but several millions of acres have already been photographed, it was learned today. So far it is proving cheaper and more efficient than the usual way of checking farmers' soil conservation compliance. The air pictures also are being extensively used by the soil conservation service to map erosion and soil depletion and to determine remedies.

SEVEN minutes of lively fighting put Joe Louis of Detroit once more on the road to the heavyweight championship. He made his come-back by knocking out Jack Sharkey, one time title holder, in the third round at New York. The Lithuanian sailor from Boston was plucky enough but proved no match for the much younger negro. Louis now wants an immediate return match with Max Schmeling, but the German insists his next fight must be with Jim Braddock.

THERE is enough wheat in the United States for the usual domestic requirements of the season of 1936-37, according to the mid-summer report of the bureau of agricultural economics, but the supply of red spring wheat and durum is short and consequently importation of those varieties will be continued. The amount, however, will not be large, Secretary Wallace stated.

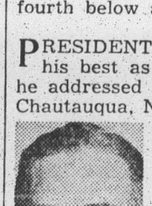
"It is probable the spring wheat mills in the 1936-'37 season will use a larger percentage of hard red winter and Pacific northwest wheat than last year," said the report. "A larger than usual quantity of soft red winter wheat is also likely to be used in bread flour. As a result, imports of milling wheat may be less than in 1935."

Wheat prices in the United States may be expected to average about as high relative to world price levels as during the 1935-'36 season, when the price of No. 2 hard winter at Kansas City was 15 cents over Liverpool, the bureau said. During the last three years short crops together with other influences resulted in wheat prices in the United States being maintained unusually high relative to the world market price.

"Farm prices probably have been 20 cents to 30 cents higher than might have been expected with more nearly normal yields in the United States," the report continued. "A return of average or greater than average yields in the United States would result in an export surplus and prices would adjust toward an export basis.

"The acreage seeded for the 1936 crop, 74,000,000 acres, was the second largest in history, and seedings as large for the 1937 crop would produce fully enough wheat for total domestic utilization even if yields should turn out to be one-fourth below average."

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT was at his best as a radio orator when he addressed the summer camp at Chautauqua, N. Y., on foreign relations. He expressed his deep concern about tendencies in other parts of the world and spoke bitterly about the violation of both the letter and the spirit of international agreements "without regard to the simple principles of honor."



President Roosevelt

"Our closest neighbors are good neighbors," the President said. "If there are remoter nations that wish us not good but ill, they know that we are strong; they know that we can and will defend ourself and defend our neighborhood."

Mr. Roosevelt said he had seen war on land and sea.

"I have seen blood running from the wounded," he said. "I have seen men coughing out their gassed lungs. I have seen the dead in the mud. I have seen cities destroyed. I have seen 200 limping, exhausted men come out of line—the survivors of a regiment of 1,000 who went forward forty-eight hours before. I have seen children starving. I have seen the agonies of mothers and wives. I hate war!"

Germans felt that Mr. Roosevelt's speech was aimed at them and resented his criticism. A Mexico City newspaper saw in it evidence that the Monroe doctrine was to be revived.

STARTING its 1937 building program, the Navy department opened bids on twelve new destroyers and six submarines. The bids came from private shipyards and estimates were submitted by navy yards, according to law. The latter were not made public.

It was found that the cost of construction has advanced approximately $1,000,000 per vessel in the last year. A year ago contracts for destroyers averaged $4,000,000, and $2,500,000 for submarines. Present bids were about a million dollars higher on each type of craft.

FOLLOWING the recommendation of Father Charles E. Coughlin, the National Union for Social Justice, in convention in Cleveland, indorsed the candidacy of Representatives Lemke and O'Brien, heads of the Union party ticket. But, also on the advice of the priest, the Lemke platform was not indorsed. The 25,000 members of the N. U. S. J. present enthusiastically and unanimously elected Father Coughlin president of the organization. Lemke and O'Brien both appeared before the convention, delivered speeches and were given a rousing reception.

AN EQUITY suit attacking the constitutionality of the commodity exchange act, chiefly on the ground that it seeks to regulate intrastate rather than interstate commerce in violation to the Constitution, was filed in the federal district court in Chicago.

The suit was instituted by Willam S. Moore, a member of the Chicago Mercantile Exchange, and names the exchange, its board of directors, and the following as defendants: Henry A. Wallace, secretary of agriculture; Leslie A. Fitz, supervisor of the commodity exchange administration in Chicago; Daniel C. Roper, secretary of commerce; Homer S. Cummings, United States attorney general; Michael L. Igoe, United States district attorney of the northern Illinois district, and Ernest J. Kruetgen, Chicago postmaster.

In his petition Mr. Moore asked that the commodity exchange act be declared unconstitutional, void, and unenforceable.

Behold! the New Fall Hats Arrive!

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

THE early fall hats thrill with excitingly new silhouettes that fairly make you gasp with their daring. No style is too dizzy, no media too extreme to have place in the smart millinery picture.

In Paris, women of fashion are wearing tiny skull-cap turbans of black silk velvet that flaunt enormous bows at the side or on the forehead. You will be seeing these bow turbans all over town.

Intricate manipulation is the key to high style throughout all millinery for fall and winter. It is a well-known fact that rich fabric and ingenious manipulation always go hand in hand. Which leads us to say that luxurious silk weaves are adding big interest to hats appearing on the autumn style horizon. When choosing your first autumn chapeau look for models in the new silk satins, the velvets in rich glowing color, silk taffetas and the handsome deep-toned velours and duvetyns such as go to make up ultra chic headgear.

The newer shapes have rolling brims with crowns built up to a peak, for the trend is decidedly toward tall peaked and conical effects. See one such shown to the left below in the illustration. It is of spruce green silk velvet covered with fine vertical stitching. You'll see lots of stitching on best-looking hats this fall. Wear this type hat with your tailored silk or sheer wool daytime frocks or suits.

Heavy silk velvets of the Lyons class are being made up in models with sports-type brims. Often these velvets are combined with silk faille as manipulated for the front of the hat to right at top in the group. This type of hat you can wear equally well with tailored silk dresses or with wool dresses of smart "town" character.

It's when you are choosing a hat to go with your best afternoon or cocktail costume that you can let yourself go in the matter of silk millinery. Not only are there the afore-mentioned bow-trimmed skull caps in wide profusion but variations of the popular beret are shown together with unique types such as the model centered below. The back of its tiny crown is of black felt and the front of rust silk velvet draped softly into an ascending point in front — a perfect complement to your afternoon outfit.

This will be a season of color. Millinery will more than ever tie up with colors of the costume. Of course black will be in the spotlight. A large per cent of French wines, rich reds and aubergine purple will be worn. Spruce green is a noted color and olive will be a highlight novelty. All browns will be good in lighter casts. Bordeaux, a wine brown, is also of prime importance.

As to sources of inspiration the Napoleonic influence has been almost universally adopted by leading modistes of Paris. Some sponsor the military style of the soldiers of France of that time. Others glean their inspiration from the conquering armies of North Africa while still others concentrate on the soft, luxurious influence of the gay society of Napoleon's reign.

The beret shown with striking quill as worn by the figure seated (note her velvety duvetyne tunic blouse) bespeaks the military trend. This model, called "Marching On" by its designer, is proving a favorite in high class shops that are showing it. The lady pictured with the voguish be-curled coiffure and the blouse elaborated with applique in leaf design is wearing a becoming portrait beret designed by Marthe. It has new cire ribbon accents.

FALL SUEDE BAG

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

This stunning brown suede handbag has a decidedly "new" look as it visions what style-conscious spectator sports maidens will be carrying to the football game. Bags stitched to match gloves are also a fashion highlight in promise for fall and winter. The handbag pictured has deep inside pockets, staunch handles to swing by and the new jewel slide fastener providing a delicate golden chain across the top. The frock and hat are in soft gray as an effective contrast to brown.

Off-Shades

The fall dress and coat picture will be brightened by so-called off-shades. Particularly is this true of football spectator clothes. Foremost among these are rust, royal and purplish blue, moss green and maple sugar brown.

Contrasting Side Seams

Rochas outlines side seams of suits and evening gowns with bands of contrasting colors.

TREND TOWARD RICH HUES FOR AUTUMN

A new fashion season means a new brainstorm for the experts who must name the featured hues in women's attire. Every name must be suggestive of the hue but it has to be different from its predecessors, otherwise a woman will think it isn't new.

For the coming autumn season, the trend in shades is toward rich colorings and the names chosen show a tendency toward specific description rather than flowery language. Sage green, for example, looks exactly like the herb for which is it named. It has that same soft, grayed tone which is unusually lovely. Maple sugar brown is another new tone which has a pale, subdued cast that is different from the browns usually appearing in the autumn.

Suit Simplicity Subtle and Therefore Expensive

Simple suits are always in demand, but the simplicity of such suits is subtle and therefore always expensive. Chanel has created a beauty which appears for summer in lightweight gray flannel, and for early autumn wear in smooth navy wool. The jacket, with one-button fastening at the waist, is slightly fitted in front and has a straight back. On one of the wide-stitched revers is a slit pocket that holds a hankie. There is a tiny turnback cuff that continues from a set-in seamed panel with three buttons.

Heel Taps

Although many of fashion's high priests claim that flats and low-heeled evening slippers are definitely out, they refuse to take the count, according to the latest style news from Paris.

Just a Little Bit Humorous

SAFETY FIRST

Little Hinks presented himself at the office with a noticeable gap in his upper dentures.

"Hullo!" was the cry. "Had an accident?"

"No," he replied. "Only a row with the wife."

"What! You surely didn't come to blows?"

"Oh, no," said Hinks. "But next time I gnash my teeth I'll remember to take my pipe out of my mouth." — London Tit-Bits Magazine.

AIMLESS SORT

"Isn't Boggs an aimless sort of chap?"

"Aimless? That guy spends half his time wondering what he's going to do with the other half."

Shaky

A man was fumbling at his keyhole in the small hours of the morning. A policeman saw the difficulty and came to the rescue.

"Can I help you to find the keyhole, sir?" he asked.

"Thash all right, old man," said the other cheerily, "you jusht hol' the housh shtill and I can manage."—Fifth Corps Area News.

Not to Be Outdone

"Down where I lived," said the Texan, "we grew a pumpkin so big that when we cut it my wife used one-half of it for a cradle."

"Well," smiled the man from Chicago, "that's nothing. A few days ago right here two full grown policemen were found asleep on one beat."—Dallas Times.

Verse and Reverse

"Think how much good the electric light company has done this town," cried the speaker, the company's president. "In conclusion let me say—if you'll excuse the pun—'Honor the Light Brigade!"

Quick as a flash came a voice from the audience: "Oh, what a charge they made."

No Better

The anxious father wrote to the college professor: "Haven't heard from my son for some time. Hope he's not sick. If he has been I hope to hear he's improving."

The professor replied: "Son not sick, and not improving."

Not So Simple

Visitor From City—Oh, to be a farmer and live always with the blue sky overhead.

Farmer—Yes, 'twould be nice if that was the only overhead.

Golfer's Stimulus

"When one goes golfing these days isn't it wonderful to drink in the sweet fresh air?"

"O, is that what you drink?"

HAPPY DREAMS

First Fish—Do you sleep well at night?

Second Fish—Sure, ain't I rocked in the cradle of the deep?

Which Bar

Mrs. Frazzle—What a terrible wreck young Perkins is, to be sure. It is sad to see such a dissipated man.

Mrs. Dazzle—Yes, indeed; but you must remember that he was admitted to the bar at a very early age.

Why Not?

"I am always ill the night before a journey."

"Then, why don't you go a day earlier?"—Windsor Star.

On the Front

Preacher—And so your daughter is about to marry. Do you really feel that she is ready for the battle of life?

Mrs. Brown—She should be. She's been in four engagements already.

He Was Quite Cool

Mrs. Blue—Was your husband cool when burglars broke in the other night?

Mrs. Green—Cool! Why, he was shivering all over.

BEDTIME STORY FOR CHILDREN

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

JERRY IS FILLED WITH DISTRUST

AS JERRY MUSKRAT lay in his bed, safe in his house, nursing his sore tail, he had time to do a lot of thinking, and he did do a lot of thinking. He thought of how day after day he had found all those good things to eat at each of his favorite eating places, and how there had not been one single thing to make him suspicious. In fact, there had been everything to take suspicion away. He began to understand just what that trapper had tried to do, and it seemed to him that nothing could possibly have been more unfair.

"He tried to make me think he was my friend," thought Jerry. "He knew that if I had the least suspicion that he wasn't my friend, I would be watching for traps. So he pretended that he was my friend and he brought all those nice things to me to eat so that I would trust him. I did trust him, and he knew it. Then when he was sure that I wouldn't suspect him of doing such a thing he set that awful trap for me. I'll never trust anybody again! I never, never will! It's awful to distrust everybody, but after this I'll just have to."

So Jerry Muskrat was filled with distrust. He had been so very happy there in the Smiling Pool for so long that now life seemed hardly worth while. There was no happiness in it. You see, he felt that not only could he no longer trust those who seemed to be his friends, but he was suspicious of everything. He no longer dared to freely climb out on his favorite places along the bank. He was even suspicious of the Big Rock. The only place where he felt absolutely safe was right inside his own house.

But of course he couldn't stay in his own house all the time, because he had to eat. Of course. Everybody has to eat. Then, too, he had a lot of work yet to do on that house of his to make it ready for winter. This meant that he had to travel around considerably to get his food and to get the material for his house. But now he never went ashore without first looking with the greatest care for signs of a trap.

One of the first things he did after he got through nursing his sore tail was to go to each of the places where that trapper had put good things to eat. He went there, not to get those good things, but to find out if there were traps there as there had been on the old log. He found a trap at each place. After that he did not go near these places.

Billy Mink would have found a way to get all those good things to eat without getting into one of the traps, but Jerry preferred to take no chances. He simply kept away from those places. Those pieces of carrot and apple were a terrible temptation, but he contented himself with his regular food and tried to forget that there were such things as carrots and apples. And even when he was hunting for his regular food he was all the time watching out for traps. He was so filled with distrust that he took no joy in anything.

MOTHER'S COOK BOOK

SERVING COMMON FOODS

THE change in preparation and combination with other foods makes a variety even when we use the everyday common things. Chicken is so well liked that it cannot be spoiled by food combinations, yet the simplest is always enjoyed the best. For those who have never eaten chicken cooked in milk, this will be a new dish:

Chicken Cooked in Milk.

Cut up a good fat fowl which would be used for fricassee, place it in a casserole after being well seasoned and rolled in flour. Cover with sweet rich milk and bake in a slow oven until the chicken is tender and the sauce cooked down to make a delicious gravy. Serve from the casserole.

Summer Squash en Casserole.

Take two and one-half cupfuls of cooked squash, add three-fourths of a cupful of thick stewed tomatoes, two tablespoonfuls of butter, one and one-half teaspoonfuls of salt, one tablespoonful of grated onion, one-half cupful of chopped cooked meat or nuts—fish is also good—mix well and cover with a half-inch layer of well buttered crumbs after putting into a baking dish. Bake until well browned. Cooked eggplant or carrots are also good for this dish.

Different Pot Roast.

Take a four-pound piece of beef from the chuck. Make slits on each side with a sharp knife. take one-fourth of a pound of salt pork, cut into strips and stuff every other slit with a piece of pork and a stuffed olive. Slice one large onion and fry in a little fat. Remove the onion and brown the meat on all sides. Add tomatoes, using three cupfuls, cover closely and simmer until the meat is tender. Use two teaspoonfuls of salt to season the meat after it has been well seared, adding pepper to taste.

THROUGH A Woman's Eyes

By JEAN NEWTON

WHEN GOD HAS MADE US FREE

IN A fine sermon a prominent minister tried to point out to his congregation their high responsibilities, by telling them that God made men and women free. We are free, he said, to pursue the highest destiny, because God made us free.

And it seems to me that the words are like a gust of fresh air admitted to a stuffy room. They are like the sound of beautiful music to one who has long been deafened. For they inject into the rush and turmoil of our daily living a something that makes us stop a moment and listen and feel and think.

God made men and women free, but do we keep ourselves free? That is the thought those words impel. For civilization has forged shackles into which many of us too willingly place ourselves.

Somewhat beyond the control of many of us, of course, are the shackles of the fight for existence. But many more of us are voluntarily enslaved who cannot point to this necessity. There is, for instance, no enslavement so hopeless as the pursuit of pleasure, for which many women give up their freedom for growth and satisfaction and happiness. And there are the petty shackles of modern life which prove strong enough to rob many people of their freedom. They are such shackles as "What will people say?" "Keeping up with the Joneses" "Others are doing—," "The things I must have."

What a pity to submit to such shackles, to permit ourselves to be held down—when God made us free.

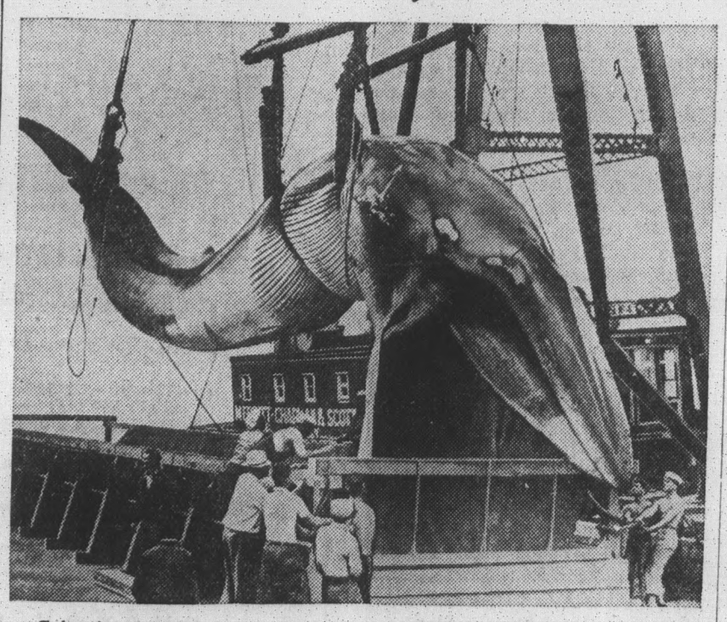
Whale Embalmed by New Process



Scientists were much interested in the embalming of this huge 65-ton fin-back whale, caught recently off the coast of Southern California, under a new process which literally petrifies the gigantic sea beast, thus preserving it for research and exhibition purposes. More than 65,000 gallons of embalming fluid, contained in a specially constructed tank aboard a rock barge, and three weeks time were required to embalm the whale.

COIN THROUGH SLEEVE

THIS is the mystery of a penetrating coin. The coin used is a small one; you show it in your right hand and deliberately drop it into your left sleeve.

Showing your right hand empty, you press your fingers against the outside of the sleeve and make a few rubs. Suddenly the coin comes into view, seemingly through the cloth itself.

Two coins are used. One is wedged between the buttons of the left sleeve. This duplicate coin is not seen as that side of the sleeve is away from view.

Drop the original coin inside the sleeve. Rub the outside of the sleeve and the duplicate coin appears as you rub it away from the buttons.

YOU ARE HERE

By Douglas Malloch

WHEN we were sundered how I thought
The things to say,
How many merry tunes I taught
My heart to play,
Sweet words to tell the joy I knew
When you had come—
And now the hour has brought me you,
And I am dumb.

Yes, now you shelter in my arms,
My love, at last;
The clouds of gray, the mists of storms,
Have drifted past.
But those dream songs I meant to bring
Today, my dear,
Are gone—and all that I can sing
Is "You are here!"

"The Man Who·O·O"

Tales and Traditions from American Political History

BY FRANK E. HAGEN AND ELMO SCOTT WATSON

THE ORIGIN OF "RUCKERIZE"

AMONG the political factions of a century ago it frequently was the practice to pack, or "ruckerize" a convention with delegates favorable to their candidates.

Of course it isn't done today, what with committees on credentials and all, but let's have a peek at the Democratic convention of 1835 and see how the expression to "ruckerize" originated.

Doughty old Andrew Jackson was determined, despite spreading opposition in his own party, to pass on the presidential mantle to Martin Van Buren of New York. He first sought to calm the Democratic opponents of Van Buren and allay their fears of the Jackson autocracy. Next he issued a call for a party convention to be held in Baltimore in May, 1835, eighteen months before the election. It was the first of the so-called "snap" conventions and its advantages are obvious.

More than 400 of the 622 delegates who attended, history records, were from four states over which Jackson exercised absolute control. No one was permitted to make a speech and there was no platform adopted. Speeches, it was explained by the chairman who presided, might provoke angry discussion and prevent the harmony it sought.

With none but the Jackson lieutenants permitted to talk, the nomination of Van Buren became a simple matter. In fact, he was named on a single ballot.

The embarrassing part to Jackson before the vote was cast was that no delegates were in attendance from Alabama, Illinois, South Carolina or Tennessee, the latter, as everyone knows, being his home state.

So when Tennessee was found to be absent, because of the split in the party inimical to Van Buren, Jackson's lieutenants went into the streets of Baltimore and looked around. They seized the first Tennessean they encountered, brought him into the convention and had him cast 15 votes in behalf of Tennessee.

This man's name happens to have been Edward Rucker and for years afterward "to ruckerize" meant, properly enough, the packing of a convention.

MAKING OF A STATESMAN

AS DESTRUCTIVE as war is, its waging or its imminence has revealed an unselfish devotion to country which shines as a bright light in American politics.

Stephen A. Douglas, "Little Giant" of Illinois, is the man who became a statesman, back in 1860, and helped elect an opponent!

Two years before, in 1858, Douglas and Abraham Lincoln had stumped Illinois in a series of debates that had drawn the attention of the entire country. Lincoln became a national figure by his adroitness in forcing Douglas to admit that the Dred Scott decision on slavery destroyed Douglas' "squatter sovereignty" doctrine. Douglas saved Illinois for himself by his reply but he had alienated the support of the deep South.

So when the returns were in, following the 1860 conventions, Lincoln and Hannibal Hamlin was the Republican ticket; Douglas and H. V. Johnson represented the Northern Democrats; John C. Breckenridge and Joseph Lane, the Southern Democrats, and John Bell of Tennessee and Edward Everett of Massachusetts carried the colors of the new Constitutional Union party.

This split in his party's ranks was a revelation to Douglas. Republicans scoffed at him thus:

"His legs were short, but his speeches they were long,
And nothing but himself he could see;
His principles were weak, but his spirits they were strong,
For a thirsty little soul was he."

But Douglas showed them all something of his principles.

Realizing the election of Lincoln was inevitable, he cast aside his own candidacy, made a speaking tour through the South. "We must save the Union," he urged them there. "Lincoln is the next President."

The South, true to its convictions on states' rights and slavery, held aloof from Lincoln, who failed to carry a single state below the Mason and Dixon line. But when Lincoln stood on the Capitol steps to take his oath of office, Stephen A. Douglas stood beside him and held the hat of the newly-sworn President.

The First Psychologist

The history of psychology may be said to begin with Plato, who was the first influential scientist to draw a clear distinction between the mind and the body. Aristotle went farther than Plato in distinguishing different faculties of the mind and attempted to solve the relation of the mind and the body. His acute analysis of the human organism, "De Anima," remained the standard work on psychology for nearly 2,000 years.

COURTESY AND CULTURE

How many seemingly educated and professionally fitted people lack courtesy and culture! This most important personal achievement is a great asset, yet so few realize what it means in every-day life as we are brought in contact with people of this busy world. How many thousands who have had good schooling and "bringing up", but fail in appearing courteous when they should, and by so doing fail in displaying that fineness of culture!

Education cannot endure without culture and without it there is most always a carelessness in showing courtesy. Self-mastery is not always complete thru education alone, but by the application of courtesy and politeness, it aids one to use control over himself and furnish a balance in life which lifts the careless mind out of the troubles of ignorance. Politeness or courtesy holds one in public admiration, socially or in business. The merchant knows, and this is why his clerks stay in his employ, because he first notices the courteous appearance before he ever talks hire or salary.

On the other hand a lack of culture unfits any person for position, spoils his outlook upon life, especially if he has contact with the world at large. It is therefore, true that the fruitage of courtesy and culture is character, which is necessary for advancement. Character is good expression and endures while other things would fail. Horace Greely, when dying, exclaimed, "Fame is a vapor; popularity is an accident; riches take wings; those who cheer today may curse tomorrow; one thing endures—Character." Or again as Emerson tells us, "Character is nature in the highest form."

September 7th is Labor Day, legal holiday that gets recognition not only in United States, but Porto Rica, Hawaii and Alaska. This dedication to labor is not to be ignored in these present times; it is the day when King Labor takes a day off, holding a general gala day. Labor has always been claimed the bone and sinew of society and industrial progress. It was first inaugurated in New York with a parade in 1882, held by the Knights of Labor. Colorado was the first state to make it a holiday in 1887, and in Europe it has been celebrated since 1890, on the first day of May. For fifty years the first Monday in September has been, in America, a national holiday in honor of the man who works, one of the rarest privileges inherited by humankind. Peaceful industry, therefore, should be the country's greatest asset. Justice to labor is the first requisite to harmonious industrial relations; but justice to labor means to all labor, not favoritism for a part of it. No doubt, to all those who toil, have been more instrumental in making this the wealthiest, most prosperous and productive country in the world, and whose well-being that of the nation itself primarily depends.

California's farm lands comprise more territory than a good many whole states in the nation. Of this state's total of 101 million acres, almost a third, or 30,442,581 acres are in 136,000 farms. This must be surprising to those unfamiliar with this most stupendous statement. There is no lack of products, from such a report, and there is no lack of people who need those products. The only difficulty is that an impassable abyss yawns between us and that Land of Plenty. Then the root of our present trouble is the failure of purchasing power to keep up with production. It calls for the abolition of monopolies. Its panacea is the continuous reduction of prices combined with the keeping up of wages in order to pass on to the masses the benefits of technological changes. The Golden State is one of a few which supplies its people with its wealth of production, when accurate distribution is at work. Just now great demands are at work to garner our surplus for the benefit of the drought sufferers in the Middle West. It also has boosted prices for the producer.

September brings back that familiar tone of the school bell. Vacation days have been long enough, and the school room must have a new and more agreeable atmosphere which has its inviting influence to all. Let us hope that its meaning is new resolves and a determined mind. Honesty of purpose, self-reliance, how to make happiness, being more frugal, greater consideration for others, power for continued self-development, patriotism, industry, tolerance of everything except evil. The "three R's" are still uppermost and stand for "readin', 'ritin' and 'rithmetic." One teacher has suggested "the three C's", Character, culture and citizenship. Why not also, make a sound mind in a sound body as a part of the new school year? Youth's wits must be sharpened, to a purpose. Culture without character is no asset to society. The school bell is the Liberty Bell of the Republic! California has a proud school record, may it continue!

This is September! While July is the beginning of the fiscal year, September may well be called the beginning of new activity. Everyone has begun, or is preparing the new routine for the coming year. It may be in the school room, store shop, office, on the road, or in the field. New things, new aspirations, or the realization of our best hopes, that conditions may be favorable. Realities in life are more important now than vacation days just past. "The melancholy day have come," is not half as serious as may be taken. Of all the days in the year, September privileges for all the best of the year; busiest but most beautiful. The odors of the field with pungent perfumes are generously sprinkled by nature; dooryards brilliant with dahlias.

California points with pride to Admission Day, September 9, which is the 86th anniversary of the event. When the state was admitted to the Union, the 31st star was placed in the flag of the United States; it was first admitted as a territory August 15, 1846. The Golden State is now fifth of all the states in population. Her inhabitants have grown in number from 100,000 at the beginning of 1850 to 5,677,251 in 1930. Over two million have joined the state within the past decade. The state's agriculture products aggregate $500,000,000 a year; oil 290,000,000 barrels; gold, silver and copper about $15,000,000. As a state of wealth California has earned the name of "Golden State".

Transportation companies of sea, and land, and air should reap in profits for September travelers. Tourists rushing back to their homes and college students departing for their various destinations all help to foster employment in the transportation industry. The increased travel during the early part of September will be especially welcomed by the railroad companies who have not enjoyed a profitable business in many years. New streamlined busses have created serious competition for the railroads, notwithstanding the competition also received from the ever-growing air lines.

Railroad executives will be wise to see to it that future trains are streamlined for beautiful appearance, efficiency, and speed.

Would an American League of Nations be practical? President Franklin D. Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hull would like to know the answer. With the failure of the League of Nations in Europe to interest itself seriously with Pan American affairs, the latin American nations are justified in seeking a union capable of handling international problems as they originate in an efficient manner. Progress towards organizing such an American league is going on slowly in Washington, D.C.; in fact very slowly due to the oncoming national election in the United States. Some of the Central American nations are impatient with the United States attitude toward the formation of such an American League of Nations. Just what the Roosevelt administration intends to do with the latin American nations who are demanding such a league is still unknown.

Everybody should obtain a good physical examination at least twice a year from competent doctors. The cost is small and good insurance against rapidly forming ailments or diseases. It is far from wise to wait until serious developments set in before you call your local physican to ascertain the condition of your health and physical safety. Americans are careful to keep their automobiles in good condition with excellent service offered at garages and gasoline stations. How about your body? It is a human machine that needs a periodic inspection not unlike your automobile.

As employment increases, so does the birth rate. It is indeed gratification of a naton's citizens to see births keep pace with improving economic conditions. One of the major problems faced by all nations during a depression is the dangerous decline of the birth rate, especially is the situation true to the United States. More healthy young Americans are needed to develop our vast natural resources as the United States is greatly unpopulated at the present time.

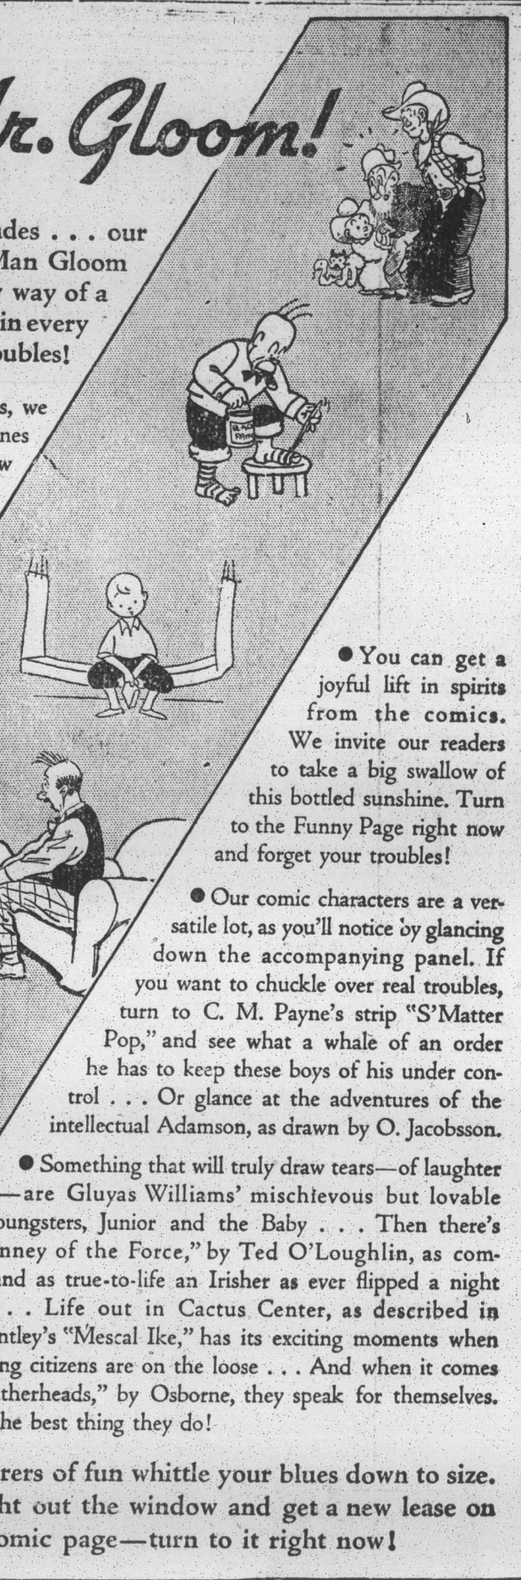
Goodbye, Mr. Gloom!



. . . We're a jolly bunch of renegades . . . our sole purpose in life is to give Old Man Gloom the gate and usher in Mr. Sunshine by way of a million laughs. Turn to the Funny Page in every issue and let us help dispel those troubles!

● No man can really live by bread alone. Yes, we admit he'll EXIST, but there will be heavy lines of care running down his face, he'll forget how to smile.

● Verily, we humans need a few hearty guffaws now and then to chase away those wrinkles of care and give our spirits a lift. That's why this newspaper runs a collection of laugh-provoking comic strips on the Funny Page. Amid the depressing news of floods and earthquakes, crime and war, economic troubles and a host of other maladjustments on the face of Mr. World, it's a pleasant relaxation to shut your eyes on the day's bad tidings.

● You can get a joyful lift in spirits from the comics. We invite our readers to take a big swallow of this bottled sunshine. Turn to the Funny Page right now and forget your troubles!

● Our comic characters are a versatile lot, as you'll notice by glancing down the accompanying panel. If you want to chuckle over real troubles, turn to C. M. Payne's strip "S'Matter Pop," and see what a whale of an order he has to keep these boys of his under control . . . Or glance at the adventures of the intellectual Adamson, as drawn by O. Jacobsson.

● Something that will truly draw tears—of laughter—are Gluyas Williams' mischievous but lovable youngsters, Junior and the Baby . . . Then there's "Finney of the Force," by Ted O'Loughlin, as comical and as true-to-life an Irisher as ever flipped a night stick . . . Life out in Cactus Center, as described in S. L. Huntley's "Mescal Ike," has its exciting moments when its rip-roaring citizens are on the loose . . . And when it comes to "The Featherheads," by Osborne, they speak for themselves. In fact, that's the best thing they do!

● Let these bearers of fun whittle your blues down to size. Toss trouble right out the window and get a new lease on life through the comic page—turn to it right now!

Open Examination For Annapolis, West Point

Congressman George Burnham announces a competitive examination for appointment to the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis and the United State Military Academy at West Point, October 17, 1936.

This examination will be conducted by the U. S. Civil Service Commission at the post office in El Centro and San Diego (or other county seat if the boy should be away from home on the date of the examination). It is for the purpose of selecting one appointee for each academy in 1937.

Any boy who is a legal resident of the Twentieth Congressional District (San Diego and Imperial Counties) may obtain authority to participate in this examination by writing to Congressman George Burnham, 1220 Bank of America building, San Diego, California, prior to September 25, 1936. On that date Mr. Burnham must advise the Civil Service Commission in Washington, D. C., the number of examinations which he desires to have prepared and sent to the various post offices.

The age requirements for both Annapolis and West Point are as follows:

Annapolis—the appointee must have reached his 16th birthday on April 1st, but not have reached his 20th birthday on March 31st of the year of entering the Academy.

West Point—the appointee must have reached his 17th birthday but not have reached his 22d birthday on the date of entrance to the Academy, which is July 1, 1937.

Congressman Burnham will be glad to hear from any boy who is interested in participating in the examination.

NAVY MAN WED AT CATHOLIC CHURCH WEDNESDAY

Mr. Joseph E. Gaura, formerly of Milwaukee, Wis., but in Navy service here, was married Wednesday at 9 a. m. to Miss Therese L. Ignatowski, recent arrival from the home state.

The wedding ceremony was performed by Father P. A. Connolly with Herman Staats, jr., best man and Mrs. Staats as bridesmaid.

The newlyweds will make their home at 1132 Bancroft place, San Diego.

THE THEOSOPHICAL SOCIETY: POINT LOMA

"First Steps in Theosophy" is the subject chosen by Mrs. Frances M. Dadd, for her lecture next Sunday afternoon in the Temple of Peace, Theosophical Headquarters, Point Loma. This lecture, which initiates the September series of forum-discussions in the Temple of Peace, also is in the nature of a farewell to Lomaland for the speaker who leaves in two weeks with her husband for Sydney, Australia, where they will continue their Theosophical activities.

Mrs. Dadd who has endeared herself to the public by her lectures and the performance of her duties as registrar and foreign language teacher of Lomaland school is ably fitted to present such a subject as "First Steps in Theosophy". Born in England she came while still a child to the Theosophical Headquarters where she continued her academic and Theosophical studies under Katherine Tingley. In 1910 she went with Madame Tingley to Cuba where she helped in the establishment of a school and in 1915 she was chosen among others to teach in the Raja Yoga school at Visingso, Sweden.

"First steps in Theosophy," says Mrs. Dadd, "means first steps in becoming acquainted with yourself. And this you do by not isolating yourself from other people, but by realizing that all humanity is you and you are everything in the Universe. Live to benefit mankind if you would know yourself and your fellows, if you would know the 'first steps in Theosophy'."

Questions and comments from members of the audience will be cordially invited.

THEOSOPHIST DIES AT POINT LOMA HOME

George Davenport, 68, who for the last 20 years had been a student of Theosophy at the International Theosophical headquarters, Point Loma, and who was widely known here as a singer in the Greek dramas presented by the late Katherine Tingley, died Tuesday.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Inez Davenport.

He was known for his dramatic work in Theosophical circles here, having been active both at the international headquarters and at the local lodge. He sang the part of Amiens, in Shakespeare's "As You Like It," and sang in Madame Tingley's presentation of "The Eumenides," his music was taken directly from the original Greek manuscript found in the temple at Delphi.

He was born in Scotland and later went to Canada. He came to San Diego 20 years ago, became active in theosophical work, and resided at the Point Loma Homestead, international headquarters of the Theosophists.—S. D. Union.

CHURCHES OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST

A Lesson-Sermon on "Man" will be presented on Sunday in all Christian Science Churches, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts.

A Scriptural selection in the Lesson-Sermon cites the verses from I Kings: "Now the days of David drew nigh that he should die; and he charged Solomon his son, saying, I go the way of all the earth: be thou strong therefore, and shew thyself a man; and keep the charge of the Lord thy God, to walk in his ways, to keep his statutes, and his commandments, and his judgments, and his testimonies, as it is written in the law of Moses, that thou mayest prosper in all that thou doest, and whithersoever thou turnest thyself: that the Lord may continue his word which he spake concerning me, saying, If thy children take heed to their way, to walk before me in truth with all their heart and with all their soul, there shall not fail thee (said he) a man on the throne of Israel."

One of the passages from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, states: "Science reveals the glorious possibilities of immortal man, forever unlimited by the mortal senses."

Escondido Grape Day Celebration Sept. 9

Escondido, Sept. 2. (Special)—Only a few days remain for further preparation and Escondido is practically ready for the thousands of visitors who are expected on Wednesday, September 9, for the 29th annual celebration of Grape Day, California's second oldest celebration that has run without a lapse.

The first Grape Day was held in 1908, before the days of motor transportation. All the visitors came on special trains over the Santa Fe. Leaving San Diego at ten a. m., the guests arrived from that city at 3 p. m. Visitors from the north made slightly better connections.

The principal celebration was held in pioneer days at the intersection of Grand avenue and Lime street, the principal business corner of the town. All the free grapes were given away off a flatrack horse-drawn wagon. Guests and local attendance numbered 1,500 to 2,000. At present the exercises are held each year on Admission Day at Grape Day park, a beautfully shaded public playground which, this year, is equipped with a new grandstand and pavilion. Ten tons of grapes will be given away to the many thousands of people. Attendance is expected to be between 25,000 and 30,000.

Free grapes, free parade, free program, free agricultural exhibits, free poultry show, free amusements of many kinds are offered and many people who bring their own luncheons will have a great time without necessarily spending one cent, the whole day.

VISITORS FROM PENDLETON GIVEN FAREWELL PARTY

Sunday, August 30, a large group of San Diego and Point Loma friends gathered at the San Diego depot to bid farewell to Mrs. Hans Struve, her daughter Jean, and son Ronald. Mrs. Struve is the sister-in-law of Mrs. Winnie Taylor and Mrs. Halbert Moore of Point Loma, both having formerly resided in Pendleton, Oregon.

Before the Struves departed, they were feted at the home of Mrs. Winnie Taylor with a huge farewell party. Ellsworth Whalen was elected master of ceremonies and turned the party into a riot of fun and hilarity. Ellsworth was invited to visit the Struves in Pendleton during the famous "Pendleton Roundup," in order that he might become a bull-tamer. Jean Struve was especially anxious for Ellsworth to visit Pendleton where they could put him in the bull arena with 1700 Pendleton girls and let the fight go merrily on. It seems that "Americana" is making all the charming young women self-conscious these days.

Latest reports are to the effect that Ellsworh is packing and getting ready to leave town. It is expected that he will settle down in the wild mountains of San Luis Obispo again in comparative safety where he can write as he pleases.

The Curse of Progress

What a Difference

The small girl's grandmother had just returned from the hairdresser's and was proudly exhibiting her new shingle.

"Oh, granny!" gasped the child, "you don't look like an old lady any more."

'Don't I, darling?" smiled granny, preening herself in the mirror.

"No," went on the child, "you look more like an old man!"—Birmingham Post.

Surprise

An English comedian, who prided himself upon his ability to speak the Scottish dialect like a native, was invited to dinner party by an Edinburgh man. During the evening the comedian told some stories in his best Scots accent and then, thinking to spring a surprise on the party, he said to his host: "What part of Scotland would you say I come from?"

The host looked dubious. "Penzance?" he asked.

Bull Taming

Where, in former times, the great bulls of the wild cattle herds needed all their strength and wit to battle their rivals and many enemies, today the domesticated bull leads a monotonous existence. As a result, he grows morose and mean because he has no outlet for his surplus energy.

When the farmer's bull becomes vicious, he usually attributes it to natural "cussedness" and lets it go at that. But John Joost, a Midway, Utah, farmer, had an idea. When his 1,800-pound bull became surly not long ago, Mr. Joost harnessed him up with a trusty horse. The bull pulled willingly, so he tried him on a plow with five horses. It worked so well that he now uses the bull all the time and the mighty beast has become as docile as a cow.

SYNOPSIS

Sleepy Cat, desert town of the Southwest, is celebrating the Fourth of July. Jane Van Tambel, beautiful daughter of Gus Van Tambel, hated owner of Gunlock ranch, has arrived from the East for the first time. She watches the Frontier Day celebration in company with Dr. Carpy, crusty, tender-hearted friend of the community. Henry Sawdy of the Circle Dot ranch, tricked in a fake horse race the day before by Dave McCrossen, foreman at Gunlock, plans revenge.

The noon train from Medicine Bend, brought a few more visitors to the Fairgrounds. These made just about a load for Jim McAlpin's bus. To one Medicine Bend man, Jim paid particular deference, calling him frequently by his first name, but doing most of the talking himself all the way from the depot, for his friend, like most sporting men, was spare of words.

But the moment McAlpin's favored passenger had paid his fair, tipped the Scotch liveryman generously, and walked toward the grandstand, McAlpin confided to those about him that this was the celebrated Harry Tenison, big-time gambler from Medicine Bend, who talked of opening a place in Sleepy Cat.

Sawdy and Lefever were in moody confab behind the grandstand when the dapper Tenison approached, picking his steps with disgust through the dust. Sawdy's eyes lighted on the new arrival first. He gave a great start.

"Harry!" he cried. "For the love o' women! Of all men you're sent this minute from heaven."

"How much is this goin' to cost, Henry?" asked Tenison, pausing to dust his shoes with an immaculate silk handkerchief. Lefever, too, beamed on Tenison.

"Harry!" he shouted. "For the love o' Mike, how come?"

"Two of you," commented Tenison calmly. "The clouds are gatherin'. I supposed you've been cleaned by this Sleepy Cat bunch and want me for a pay-off."

"Harry," murmured Sawdy, lower-voiced and very sober, "I'll admit I couldn't have said it better myself. Come this way. Talk low."

The three found a quiet spot back of the grandstand. The story of the cowmen was soon told. It went into sympathetic and unhesitating ears. As with all gamblers who play big, Tenison's mind was soon made up. "I don't bank much on sure things; but you two seem to know what you're talkin' about. How much do you boys want?"

"A thousand, Harry."

Tenison thought a minute. "Is Jake Spotts in town?"

"Here on the grounds, if he's not up at the saloon."

"Hunt him up. He'll have a few hundred. I've got a few in my pocket. Where's the boy that pulls this stuff for you?"

"Come over to the horses and meet Bill Denison. We're keeping him dark. They think he's a hostler."

Tenison, when introduced, looked over Sawdy's hope in his usual cold-blooded fashion. Jake Spotts, the profane barber-shop-and-bar magnate, appeared meantime. Tenison asked for six hundred dollars. Jake counted his roll. He showed four hundred odd. "Give me the four, Jake," said Tenison calmly.

"I c'n get all you want up at the bar, Harry," suggested Spotts, thin, tall, bald-headed, hollow-jawed, and hollow-eyed.

"There's no time to make the trip, Jake," interposed Sawdy, nervous. "The races are pretty near over, and the trick ridin' comes next."

"No matter," interposed Tenison. "I'll borrow a couple hundred from Harry Boland."

"Why, Boland's backin' the Gunlock outfit."

"All the better. I'd just like to double-cross the . . ."

Within the next five minutes he was talking to Boland. "What's next on the program?" asked the Medicine Bend gambler after the preliminaries.

"Trick ridin'," said Boland.

"Chance to pick up any money on it?"

"Sure, if you can place any money. Bet on McCrossen, ridin' for Gunlock."

"The rustler?"

"Hell, he's foreman at Gunlock now."

"I suppose Van Tambel wouldn't feel easy if he had an honest man stealin' for him. All right. If you say it's McCrossen, lend me a couple of hundred, Harry. I'd like to make my fare up here, anyway."

Boland counted out two hundred dollars and handed it over. Tenison handed half of it back to Boland. "Put this on McCrossen for me—I'll see if I can place the rest on him myself. Who's ridin' against him?"

"Two or three buckaroos. The Circle Dot outfit have entered a young fellow—we'll clean 'em, same as we did yesterday," predicted Boland.

"I heard about that—suckers will always fall for it, Harry. Well, I'll go over and talk to Sawdy and Lefever—see if they got any money left—maybe I can get a small bet."

Boland was fat and short. He never breathed easily; but he would not have been able to breathe at all if he had heard the next talk between Tenison and Sawdy.

"How does it look to you, Harry?" blurted out Sawdy.

"Like many things have looked before takin'; they don't always look so good after. Here's Jake's four hundred. I'm addin' six hundred—that makes your thousand. I don't know about that cigarette trick. I never saw it done but once."

"Where was that?"

"In Madison Square Garden."

"Who pulled it?"

"A young fellow—a Texan—I didn't get his name."

From the judges' stand came the clang of the bell. The jockeys rode up to hear the decision. When they had ridden away, the announcing judge called for the contestant in the next event—the fancy riding.

Four entries rode up and were checked in. First came McCrossen, Gunlock foreman, tall and spare, long-haired and straight as a statue, riding the identical mare that had taken the Circle Dot money the day before.

Next for entry came a Gunlock brave, accoutered with banded hair in scant Indian fashion. The third hope was a local boy in brave apparel.

The fourth to ride up was the night wrangler of the Circle Dot outfit—not an alarming threat either in looks or in reputation. He rode the horse on which he had been so badly beaten the day before, Lefever's little chestnut gelding. His personal rig was inconspicuous. Having been worn the whole way on the drive from the Rio Grande, wear and travel stain had made themselves sensibly felt on it.

Three judges had been chosen to name the victor—Jim Laramie, a north-country cattleman, himself a rider of no mean ability; John Selwood, a mining man who likewise knew how to ride; and an ex-sheriff, Bill Pardaloe—now a deputy—and who rode like a tub, but matched any man in the mountains as a connoisseur of decent liquor, and who would drink nowhere in Sleepy Cat except Jake Spotts'.

The first test came in Indian-style riding. This meant bareback first with bridle stripped; then with bridle. The Reservation entry was at home in this. It made a pretty picture: the half-naked young brave racing around the track, throwing himself from side to side and backward and forward on his pony.

Pardaloe gave him a hundred points and waited for the next man. The local boy passed out on this test. McCrossen made a splendid showing, but his size was against him for that style of horsemanship.

The wrangler, almost as large a man, seemed able better to twist and wind himself around his gelding. The last time he raced down the course it looked at a distance from the grandstand as if the horse had lost his rider, so completely did the wrangler hide himself on the opposite side.

The judges, at least, decided that no buck they had ever seen ride could hide himself more effectually from a foe—they gave the Texan par with the buck. McCrossen fell a few points under the two.

Wild West riding followed. In this McCrossen made a perfect score. His long, lithe body in action, his perfect ease and his striking garb brought enthusiastic applause. The wrangler, now well thought of, was a disappointment in this test. He got through all the work, but seemingly unevenly and with an effort. He dropped to eighty points, with McCrossen at par. Even the local boy and the Indian passed him.

"Looks like yesterday over again," said Harry Boland, disposed to jeer at Sawdy. "Guess your boy shot his bolt on the first round."

The laugh seemed to bore into Sawdy. "We don't quit yet," he blurted out like one baffled but not beaten, "though I'll say I have seen the boy ride a whole lot better."

"What do you think, Harry?" Boland was appealing now to Tenison, who stood near at hand.

"Looks like the wrangler is through," assented Tenison. Backing then to one side and speaking loud to Boland, he added: "Put that money of mine on McCrossen—he's got the act in the bag."

"Well, better luck next time, Henry," said Boland, resuming his prodding of Sawdy.

"I don't ask any better luck," retorted Sawdy. "My boy is the best rider in this bunch, an' I know it."

"Henry," asked Boland, "have you got any money that says that?"

Sawdy fairly hated the sound of the fellow's sneering voice. "The boy's just havin' an off spell—might be all right next event."

"But you wouldn't bet on it?"

Sawdy looked at his tormentor gravely. "You want a bet, eh?"

"Sounds like it, don't it?"

"What odds'll you give?"

Boland turned to Tenison to laugh. "Here's a man with the best fancy rider on earth and askin' odds on him."

"Askin' odds on him today only," explained Sawdy defensively. "He's just off color today."

Boland sneered again. "An' there ain't goin' to be no trick ridin' tomorrow. That's a fine proposition of yours, Henry."

"I'll have my boy in the saddle tomorrow for any kind of ridin' you name against any rider you name," retorted Sawdy.

"What odds you askin', Sawdy?" asked Boland, dangerously near to a sneer as he questioned.

"On the showin' the boy's made," responded Sawdy impressively, "and only on the chance he can pull himself together by tomorrow, I'm askin' two to one."

"How much do you cover at that?"

"All you can raise."

"Sawdy," snapped Boland, "I'll go you a thousand, two to one." The judges' bell clanged for the trick riding. Sawdy in consternation rushed toward the stand. "Hold on," he cried throwing up his hands. "Five minutes, gentlemen—just five minutes," he shouted. "My man is changin' his boots. Five minutes, please!"

"Does it take him five minutes to take off his boots?" bellowed Bill Pardaloe. "I c'n kick mine off in five seconds. Start the ridin'!" ordered Bill, clanging the bell impatiently.

"For God's sake, Bill Pardaloe!" shouted Sawdy, "hold on, hold on—give me at least three minutes." If a wink from the foot of a two-story balcony might be described as stentorian, such was the slow, agonizing wink that Sawdy cast up at the impatient judge.

Pardaloe looked at his watch. "I'll give you two minutes," he said sternly. "Be ready or default!" But both men quite understood that this remark was for public consumption rather than literal enforcement.

Sawdy raced hastily back to Boland, who, in fact, had followed him part way to the stand. "You said a thousand at two to one," panted Sawdy. He drew hastily from his pocket a roll of bills and laid the money in Tenison's hands. "Count that—they're mostly fifties. Now, Boland, put up or shut up."

"Just a minute!" Boland conferred with his cronies—a group of them were already about him. There was a turning sidewise, a digging into pockets, an assembling of wads; the thousand was hurriedly put into Tenison's hands.

Boland was excited, Sawdy particularly calm. "Boland," he said casually, "I'm hungry."

"What do you mean, Sawdy?"

"I'm hungry for another thousand, same odds."

"Like hell, I guess."

Sawdy pulled from another pocket a second roll of bills.

"Put up, Boland, or shut up, just's you like."

"Sawdy, I'll bet you five hundred more, even money." It was purely a bluff, but it brought an unpleasant surprise.

"I want to be fair, Harry Boland," retorted Sawdy, "just's you was, yesterday. Put up your five hundred, buddy. I'll cover it."

The words were a blow to Boland. Sawdy's not even pausing to insist on odds as the money went up told him that somebody, somewhere, had loaded something. Sawdy hustled back to the stand and winked anew at Pardaloe. The bell clanged. The contestants rode up. The wrangler now, as Jane Van Tambel saucily whispered to Dr. Carpy sitting next to her, was a symphony in brown, from head to foot—a skeleton brown jockey cap, close-fitting brown jersey, brown jersey riding trousers, and low, soft, brown boots made up his rig.

McCrossen clung to his scarlet sash and silk shirt—nor had the Indian or the local boy changed.

As the riding went swiftly forward and the feats grew more difficult, the boy and the Indian were eliminated.

McCrossen took these stunts readily, the wrangler riding fourth, and easily, in all the tests after him. These two riders seemed indifferent in all the earlier feats. They rode standing, feet first or head first; twirling rifles, turning lightning-like in the saddle to face forward or backward at full speed. The crowd sat bewildered.

With the struggle narrowed to the two seemingly even-matched riders, spectators began to wonder how the contest could be decided. The judges, after conference, asked for a further trial of the familiar feat of picking objects from the ground.

Already these feats had been made a feature and creditably performed. But some word had reached the judges that there might be further possibilities in this field. The two contestants were asked to propose their own stunts, tossing for first choice. McCrossen won. A lady's white handkerchief was dropped, and, riding at speed, turned backward in the saddle, McCrossen picked it from the ground. The wrangler followed suit, with easy result.

For the Little Princess

1828-B.

The simplicity but irresistible charm of princess frocks accounts for their undiminished popularity and appeal for those who sew, and this one will make an instant hit with the mothers of growing daughters as well as with the daughters themselves. Slightly fitted at the waist to accent the mild flare of the skirt, this pretty and petite princess model goes together like a charm, the result of a minimum of effort and expense. Puff sleeves, a contrasting Peter Pan collar, and a row of small bright buttons down the front complete the picture.

Daughter will love to choose her own fabric — a printed muslin, percale, challis or sheer wool —and with a tiny bit of coaching she can make the frock herself!

Send today for Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1828-B, available in sizes 4, 6, 8 and 10 years. Size 8 requires 2¼ yards of 35-inch fabric plus ¼ yard contrast. Send 15 cents in coins.

Send for the Fall Pattern Book containing 100 Barbara Bell well-planned, easy-to make patterns. Exclusive fashions for children, young women, and matrons. Send 15 cents for your copy.

OF INTEREST TO THE HOUSEWIFE

To keep the coffee pot sweet, boil a strong solution of borax in it occasionally.

* * *

Never wear rings, except plain bands, when washing fine laces, silks, etc. Rings may catch in fabrics and tear them.

* * *

Always wipe your electric iron with a clean cloth before heating it, to remove any dust or dirt.

* * *

Beets are fattening and therefore excellent food for those desiring to put on flesh.

* * *

Fill crevices in floors with putty and smooth off with a knife. Do this three or four days before putting finish on floors.

* * *

To remove print from flour sacks, rub print with lard and let stand over night. In the morning boil in water with soap in it, then rub until print has all disappeared.

* * *

Never sprinkle rose bushes with the hose. Put the hose on the ground and allow the water to seep in around the roots of the plants.

Uncle Phil Says:

That is Something

If a man knows he is mediocre he can console himself by supporting noble and high-minded causes.

It is a Hindoo epigram that "money will buy a dog, but only love will make him wag his tail."

Each day, praise the deserving and somewhat less often scatter rebukes among the undeserving.

Very little of education is mistaken. If it does nothing else it confers polish.

Would It Unburden Us?

Not enough pains are taken to put the great issues of the day in understandable form for the millions.

We all think our "hearts are in the right place," no matter how freakish our affections.

Some men don't give up — and hence win — because it is too much trouble to give up.

Calmness

CALMNESS is the mind's unity. The soul comes to itself in quiet, as music is remembered in the morning. By locking up the jury of our thoughts we force it to unanimity. Self-communion is always followed by fresh strength. All insight requires us to go into committee of the whole. Space within permits clearness of vision and speech. The country-seat of the soul surrounds itself by a park of repose, and protects itself by a gateway of discriminate entry and approach.—Stephen B. Stanton.
